Assistingu.com launches graphic design services for printed materials

Leading Internet Site developer extends design services to provide fully integrated marketing programs for business.

August 9, 2004 (Simi Valley, CA) – Assistingu.com, a Ventura County leader in web design and internet solutions for business, today announced its entry into print graphic design.

The new services extend the company's offerings and give Assistingu.com customers access to a fully integrated marketing program. Assistingu.com is offering graphic design for business cards, letterhead, brochures, newsletters, signs and other printed material, in addition to its innovative web design.

“This is a hassle elimination program for small business” says Tim Keaney, co-owner of Assistingu.com. “Businesses go to one company for their printed design, another company for their web design, and in many cases a third company for their logo design or other services. Having it all under one roof means a company's image will be consistent, they'll save time and they'll certainly save money”.

“Our design team has 10+ years experience in all facets of graphic design.” Keaney further stated. “Every company is unique, and it takes experienced design professionals to give them a unique look in all of their marketing pieces. That is our goal for every client”

Assistingu.com is a leading provider of Internet and Marketing Solutions for business. Founded in 1999, the company provides web design, graphic design for print, copywriting, content management, custom database development and web hosting services. The company is headquartered in Simi Valley, California.
